

COPE Classes

Co-operative Parenting Education

Where: The Missing Link, Where Parents and Children Reconnect
914 E. State, Fremont, OH 43420
567.201.5054
Instructor: Linda McGilton, M.A.
Adjunct Professor/Senior Lecturer, Tiffin University

COPE Classes are mandated by the State of Ohio for all adults divorcing. There will be 2-3 (2 hour classes), depending on the needs of the participants. COPE offers an in-depth look at how to make divorce a little easier for all parties, especially the children. The COPE Program is evidence based. COPE helps divorcing parents learn to work with one another without putting the children in the middle. This helps to lessen the trauma of the divorce. The Missing Link also does follow up with all participants to see how the adjustments are going and if the parties are in need of any other services.

Anyone may sign up for COPE Classes. Divorcing couples are not permitted to take the class at the same time. Due to the sensitive nature of the subject, children are not to be present for COPE Classes.

All participants must complete orientation prior to first class.

REGISTRATION:

Please check the current schedule of class availability. There are day classes as well as, evening classes offered. Saturday classes available upon request.

Pre-registration is required through the Common Pleas Court. Please contact JUDGE Barbara Ansted 419-334-6170 or JUDGE John Dewey 419-334-6169.

FEE: $25 per person. Cash or money order permitted. This includes all class materials, research library and follow up.

Completion Certificate is given to participant and faxed to the Court.